

SUZUKA 4 HOURS ENDURANCE RACE 2015

Synergy Force MORIWAKI Club

Testing for Suzuka 4 Hours Race Comes to an End
A Big Progress for Next Week's Race!

Continuing from yesterday, the weather condition was good for Suzuka Circuit. Synergy Force MORIWAKI Club had planned a simulation for next week's race. To top things off, Shelina Moreda tried many different setups to shorten the lap times. The mechanics have answered to her demands and give her the right advises to get the perfect set-ups.

In today's practice sessions, a 50 minute sessions took place to for riders to simulate for the race, knowing that it is the last day of the test; there were traffic everywhere on the track. Even in this situation, Shelina had updated her time from last year showing her consistency in development. Unfortunately Melissa Paris could not come to the test therefore Shelina had done her best to setup to bike for her and Melissa.

Suzuka 4 Hours Race will finally begin next week. Endurance race is tough for riders of course but also for the mechanics and supporters. We, Synergy Force MORIWAKI Club, Shelina Moreda, and Melissa Paris will be as one to fight for the points.

Please have hope for Synergy Force MORIWAKI Club and this whole project!

Comments from the Rider and Team Manager

Shelina Moreda

Once again, I would like to thank Synergy Force, Moriwaki and all those who are involved in this big project for letting me have this amazing opportunity.

As for the testing itself, I struggled with the suspension set-ups, and I spent most of the time trying to find the right direction. We set ourselves a lot of menu to test, and by the end of the day, we were able to get the right feel for us to start with for the coming race weekend! I can't wait!

I am also happy for the fact that I was able to set my personal best lap in day two, and I can tell that I am getting more used to the supersport 600 bikes. In addition, it is big to me that the mechanics will instantly understand and are able to share with me the problems, and come up with options to try next.

Midori (team director), and the mechanics are just great to work with, and I am so happy that I am more confident and excited after this meaningful test. I hope to see you all again in the Suzuka 4 Hours Race next week!

I think that Shelina Moreda have made a big progress through these testing days. I feel very happy to be able to work with her as a same woman. In today's test, she updated her time from last year and I think this is because her physical and mental conditions are all going to the right direction of enrichment.

The team members and riders are all the same from last year however, this shows that everyone involved in this "Women in Motorcyclism" project had put such an enomous effort from the past year. I would be much appreciated if you can see our changes and a challenge to achieve some points for the Suzuka 4 Hours Race including our sponsors, fans, and everyone who are involved in this big project. Thank you very much.
